"A Fire Officer's Guide to Common Sense Leadership"

Presented by Chief Dan Jones

Chapel Hill, NC and Editor-in-Chief of National Fire & Rescue Magazine

There are many text books and millions of words written about fire service leadership, command responsibilities, fire company management, disaster management and the roles and responsibilities of fire officers. Using experience and common sense, Chief Jones boils most of that information down into simple and easily remembered guidelines to help company officers and chief officers lead in today's dynamic and demanding fire service. The presentation will focus on three elements consisting of "10 Commandments for Fire Officer Survival", "US Navy Flight School Situational Awareness for Fire Officers", and "Twenty Rules of Crisis Management". All three elements were derived from lessons learned the hard way by leaders in difficult and demanding roles. This program will provide easy to remember and common sense guidelines useful to any fire officer, career or volunteer, large or small department.
